Jay Pritzker Pavilion - Millennium Park Chicago, IL

The Jay Pritzker Pavilion, also known as the Pritzker Pavilion or Pritzker Music Pavilion, is a bandshell in Chicago's Millennium Park in Cook County, Illinois, United States. The Pritzker Pavilion is Millennium Park's centerpiece and home to the Grant Park Symphony Orchestra and Chorus, as well as the Grant Park Music Festival, the country's only remaining free outdoor classical music series.

Project Design Brief

Millennium Park required a drainage system able to withstand the load capacity of landscaping service vehicles. The previous drainage did not account for these issues and collapsed under such loads. The KlassikDrain KS100 and Type 476D longitudinal ductile iron grate from ACO were carefully selected. The grates can withstand the expected load capacity while still remaining safe for pedestrians in wheelchairs or high heels.

Benefits

- DrainLok, a patented boltless locking system, provides quick fitting and removal of grates, helping reduce installation/maintenance time and cost.
